Why must women pay such a painful price for motherhood? It seems unreasonable and unnatural that such a price should be exacted for the simple fulfillment of the law of being. For Nature echoes and enforces the divine command "in-

Every living thing brings forth "fruit after his kind," naturally, regularly and without strain or struggle as compared with the strain and struggle of human motherhood. The first thing that every woman needs to be taught

Because in succeeding generations forces to the idol, Custom, and when ! they are confronted with maternity are unequal to its demands. It would seem apparent that all this could be changed; that children could be borne with little pain and nursed with boundless pleasure if the lost vital power could be restored to women. SECRETARY AND HIS AIDS RE-ELECTED

Bishop Granberry of Virginia Presiding Over Deliberations.

The first business meeting of the 115th annual session of the Baltimore conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South was called to order this morning at 9 o'clock in Mt. Vernon Place Church, Bishon John C. Granberry of Ashland, Va., presid-

The conference will remain in session for a week, or longer, should a press of business require an extension. It is composed of the ministers of the Methodist Church South residing in Maryland, Virginia and absolutely dangerous. When you seek | West Virginia, a large representation being present this morning and a still larger atseeking it of one who is qualified by tendance in prospect for the more important meetings which are to follow. The appointment of pastors to the various charges under the supervision of the conference will be the last item of business transacted previous to final adjournment. At this morning's session Mt. Vernon Place Church was crowded. Many of the delegates are accompanied by their wives and other relatives, who were present in company with ladies of this city interested in the work of the ministerial body. Bishop Granberry led the devotional exercises reading from the eighteenth chapter of Matthew. It was decided to hold meetings daily from 9 to 12 in the morning. The af-ternoons during the continuance of the session will be given over to committee meet-ings, when reports will be prepared for subings, when reports will be prepared for sub-mission to the general body. The evenings will be devoted to religious services.

The secretary, Rev. James E. Arm-strong of Staunton, Va., presiding elder of the Rockbridge district, was re-elected, as were also his assistants, Messrs. George T. Tyler, Asbury R. Martin, James P. Stump, Henry S. Coe, William M. Waters and El-dridge V. Regester.

Bishop Granberry announced the appoint-ment of the conference boards on missions.

AFFAIRS IN GEORGETOWN. Local Items Gathered West of Roel

Mr. John Theurer, who for some years past had been in Germany completing his musical education, is in town on a visit to his parents at 1667 32d street. Mr. Theurer left his home about five years ago, and has devoted all of his time to his favorite study, He is the author of a number of musical selections, which have become quite popular on the continent, and only recently pro duced an opera that met with a very flattering reception from the critics as well as the general public.

The Georgetown Gaslight Company has started to make a much-needed improvement in the northern section of town. New gas mains are being laid on T street from 32d to 35th streets, and down 34th street from T to R streets. The mains formerly laid on these streets, owing to the building up of the locality, have been shown to be entirely too small to accommodate the demands.

The outfit was the property of the Consumers' Brewing Company of Rosslyn, Va., and was used by Mr. Edward Reynolds, who at the time of the runaway was in the barber shop. Last summer Mr. Reynolds was seriously injured by a runaway at Cabin John bridge, which kept him confined for several weeks.

Last July the Commissioners promised that T street, one of the principal throughfares to the Western High School, should be improved. Preparatory to this improvement the gas company was ordered to set their lamp posts out in the street beyond the existing curbline. Nothing, however, has been done toward carrying out this order. The students of the High School wade daily through mud in wet weather and dust in dry. The north side of the street is without a footwalk.

STRICT ADHERENCE.

Commissioners to Strictly Enforce at Existing Regulation.

The District Commissioners have determined to firmly adhere to a strict enforcement of the regulations recently promulgated by them relative to awnings across sidewalks and parking spaces. These regulations have been published in The Star, and among other things they prohibit any lettering on the awnings. The Commissioners recently received from Messrs. Dulin & Martin Company, 1215 F street, a request for permis sion to substitute their firm name for their predecessor, M. W. Beveridge, on the side awnings in front of their place of business. As the granting of the request would amount simply to the substitution of one series of lettering for another. Commissioner Wight recommended favorable ac-tion. Captain Beach, the Engineer Comociates that in his opinion the granting of the request would amount to an excep-tion without any grounds therefor, and would give parties refused permits just cause for complaint. He therefore recommended that the petitioners be informed that if the lettered portion of any awning be removed it cannot be restored, nor any lettered canvas be put in its place.

Mr. Wight thought, nevertheless, that the enforcement of the regulations as sug-gested by Captain Beach would be too se-vere, but said that if his associates thought otherwise, he would interpose no further objection. The matter was then disposed of by the adoption of the following indorsement of Commissioner Ross and Beach:
"If the request to change one lettered flap for another is granted, we do not see that any step will be taken toward the elimination of the present very objectionable flaps which now so disfigure the streets. We would therefore recommend a strict ad-herence to the regulations."
